Baby, it's may be cold out there but the action you'll find in this issue is hot, hot, hot. We look for the best matches to showcase and the toughest ladies to profile but sometimes our job gets a little bit easier. When you least expect it, catfights or brawls may break out. Well, FIGHTING FEMALES happened to be in the right spot at the right time! We caught a doozy of match between Nicole, Knight, Miss NWA and Countess Vladimira. The dark side takes on goodness in this no holds barred brawl. This totally spontaneous catfight took place when the two met at a cover shoot for this very magazine you're now holding. Sure, it was a definite scheduling goof up but these gals weren't going to play nice. Each wanted the cover and they decided to fight for it. Take a look at the explosive action starting on page 40. You won't believe your eyes!

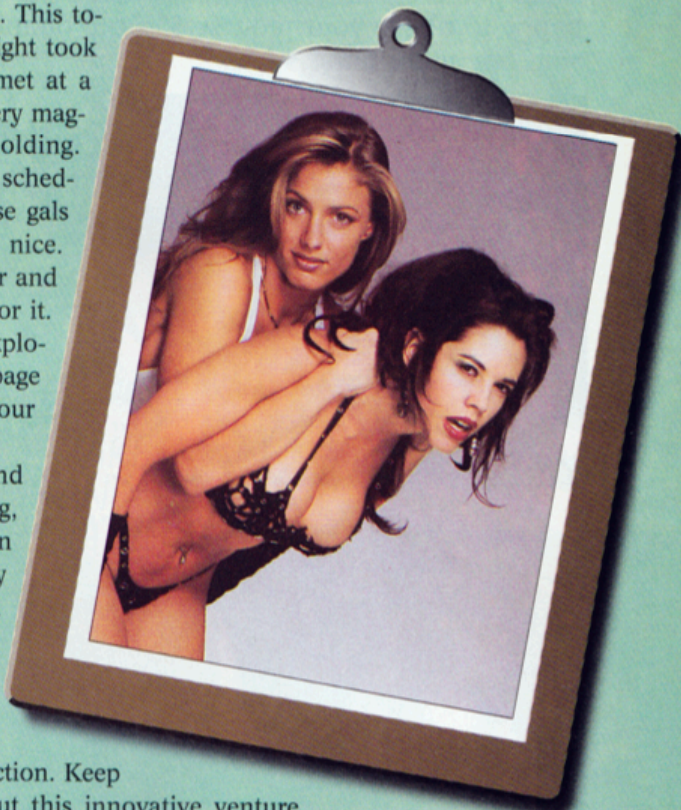

Something new and exciting is unfolding, thanks to our Canadian neighbors. How many of you have ever heard of a tag team boxing match? Yes, boxing. Jeanne Hunter was there to preview some of the exciting action. Keep reading for more about this innovative venture into the already fast and furious world of female boxing.

If you think you know what your neighbors are doing behind closed doors, guess again. That timid little librarian that lives one floor above you just might be taking out her frustrations in a way that'll make your eyes pop. Check out the Apartment Antics. You'll never look at your neighbors in the same way again. Guaranteed!

DWW offers an exclusive look at the European wrestling and boxing scene. Their annual Summerfest just keeps getting better and better. Feast your eyes on page 36 for a look at this year's competitors and the very unusual matches they participated in.

If nostalgia is your thing, have we got a treat for you! A look back at the early years of wrestling is sure bring back some pleasant memories. The AWA was the premiere women's organization back in the early 1980's. See how many of your favorite stars got their start in this fine promotion.

So, what are you waiting for? Turn the page and enter the wonderful world of FIGHTING FEMALES! ♦

WOMEN'S TAG TEAM BOXING IS A

Knockout

There is a red-hot story brewing in the world of fighting females. It's full of sizzle and is breaking out from Jeanne Hunter territory right now.

In fact, it's so hot that it is undoubtedly the most exciting news circulating around the fight game in North America's Pacific Northwest. And, it has fight fans in sold-out arenas on their feet!

So what's all the fuss about? It's Women's Tag Team Boxing, that's what. And it is launching from British Columbia, Canada.

► Cathi Beban (in gold) made her pro boxing debut in a singles bout against Raylene Kellock (in white) on April 11, 1996 in Vancouver. The women punched it out for 3 action-packed rounds before a crowd of 3,000 fight fans. Cathi scored a victory by unanimous decision. (photo by Dee Lip-pingwell)

Jeanne Hunter, an amateur female boxer and wrestler who is developing a profile internationally with the production of female combat sport videos for Nitesho Publishing and StoneCold Productions of Vancouver, Canada, has the story.

"On October 19, 1996, a historic event in female prize-fighting was introduced," says Jeanne. "It was the debut of Women's Tag Team Boxing. The action was incredible!"

Jeanne continues, "The event was a So You Wanna Fight boxing card staged in Nanaimo, British Columbia by veteran boxing trainer and promoter, Don Arnott. The show featured several toughmen fights in three weight divisions. But it was the fisticuffs in the ladies division which stole the show! Eight women duked it out in an elimination-style event in front of 2,000 spectators for the top prize of $1,000.00. And our video cameras captured their war!"

Don Arnott has been promoting and teaching boxing and kickboxing for the past 18 years. He trains and manages Jacqueline and Cathi Beban "The Battling Beban Sisters" and is the developer of the newest concept in female boxing.

Don states, "Women's Tag Team Boxing is one of the fastest-paced, action-packed fighting events today!" His town of Nanaimo is among the few locations in North America with an Athletic Commission that will sanction So You Wanna Fight toughgirl prize fights in public venues.

On October 19th, Don Arnott featured 4 teams of two women boxers on his So Ya Wanna Fight card and had them fight in a six minute round. His rules allow a fighter to leave the ring if she is being out-boxed. But she must make it to her corner and tag out. The fight is stopped for a brief moment while her opponent takes a neutral corner and her partner enters the ring to continue the fight.

Jeanne Hunter, who hones her boxing skills under the watchful eye of an Olympic medalist boxer, says: "Vancouver fight promoter, Gerry Gionco, has also picked up on the concept and now features tag teams of women boxers on his fight cards. I think his description sums up the appeal of Women's Tag Team Boxing when he says, 'It's wild! It's a sureshot show-stopper and an ultimate crowd pleaser!'"

Jeanne adds, "Make sure you pick up your copy of the next Fighting Females. I'll have the full story on the Women's Tag Team Boxing phenomenon in that issue."

In the 1980's, comedian Andy Kaufman became well known for his wrestling bouts with women, both on the amateur and later on the professional level, until unexpected cancer took his life. His spirit, however, lives on in the 1990's, reborn in the body of one Johnny Legend, a bearded beanpole of a man, who has long been a thorn in the sides of California based wrestling eler, Bubba Storm, Larry Ludden and Victor Rivera. When he decided to branch out into managing women wrestlers, however, he got more than he bargained for. His efforts were a disaster, the women he represented were offended by what they deemed as sexist commentary over the microphone and when his interference caused them to lose, rather than win matches, an explosion followed.

In Cudahy, California, Legend had two of his female grapplers turn on him in one night. First Apocalypse chased him out of the building when his bungling cost her what should have been an easy win over Angie J'enet. Not long afterward, he was again chased out of the ring by Cheryl "Lightning" Rusa and from there, the age old battle of the sexes was born.

Legend found himself challenged by both Apocalypse and Lightning that night. He was soon out of a job and obviously fans.

For several years, Legend managed male wrestlers like Dr. Jerry Graham, The Time Travin very hot water. Both women tore up their contracts and went to fellow girl grappler, Eileen "MTV" O'Hara, who was looking to go into management. They appealed to the AIWA brass to book matches for them against their former manager, and asked the fans to back their plan.

At first the promoters balked at the idea but relented when the fans demanded the matches be signed. The promotional office agreed to book one bout, Legend vs. Lightning on a trial basis. If all went well, Apocalypse would be next in line. If not, the idea of this male/female bout would be scrapped forever.

Legend, who publicly boasted of wanting the bouts, was unnerved behind the scenes. He went to male wrestlers and asked them to teach him every dirty trick they knew. They did, but the problem was these tactics were designed for use in male versus male contests, rather than male versus female. Legend had crammed for an exam, only to take the wrong test!

The bout did take place and it was crazy. Legend tried to stack the deck every way he could. He had all his friends at ringside, including two who attempted to drive him away in a getaway car (the show took place outdoors, in a ballpark), only to be foiled by a blocked gate. He then feigned a trip over a chair and injury, to try to avoid getting into the ring and this too, failed. He stalled, he ran, he hemmed, he hawed, while all the his opponents, friends, promoters and fans were all furious. Just as a riot was about to break out, Lightning got a hold of her target.

Rusa thrashed Legend, who finally broke away and ran for the hills. Lightning followed and ended up pinning Legend on top of a television cable truck. Again, Legend caused his own undoing because he insisted that "pinfalls count anywhere in the world" during this bout. His friends booed and walked away.

So, in the end, Legend stood deserted and humiliated, but not finished yet. He insisted he would train on his own, gain a rematch and win. The problem was, the promotion wanted none of it.

"Legend outdid himself with that bout with Lightning," promoter Ed Ahrens stated. "Fans won't come back for more because Legend is such a joke in the ring. He didn't make this contest, he made it a race. He showed everyone what a coward he is. We'll never back him in another match. NEVER!"

Legend still didn't give up. He publicly provoked Lightning, Apocalypse and a whole list of women who wanted a crack at him. Veronica Cerro, Lisa Kaito Lee, Lady Victoria and Lady Satan all wanted to face him while one of his former proteges Sister Slash, who had long retired, sent a message from the Midwest saying she would enter the ring again, just to get a crack at the bearded braggart.

With such intense pressure, the promotion relented and a Legend vs. Lightning II match was signed. Only this time, the outcome was different.

To make a long story short, Legend cheated and won...but the big shocker came, when he walked to the ringside table, stole his opponent's belt and declared himself to be the new "AIWA Women's champion."

This was so bizarre but Legend threatened court action if anyone tried to take the belt from him so the promotion reluctantly yielded.

Lady Victoria is just one of many who want a shot at Johnny Legend.

"I think the promotion just wants to blow the matter away," The Time Traveler mused. "Rather than go through a court case, they figured they'd let Legend keep the belt and get beaten by the next lady he faces. This will end his reign and the women's belt will go back to the women, where it belongs. I just hope it happens real soon, for everybody's sake."

So, Johnny Legend continues to brag and boast, demanding that all fighting females of the world come to him and try to knock him off his self proclaimed throne. Whether he wants to admit it or not, his kingdom is not very secure...♦

is in great shape.

FIGHTING FEMALES: How did you get started in wrestling?

MISS TEXAS: Well, I met a few wrestlers who worked for World Class Wrestling at my local gym. They were impressed with my physique and ability and suggested I go into serious training and give wrestling a try. I decided to listen to them.

FF: When was your first match and who did you wrestle?

MISS T: My first match took place in March of 1988 at the Dallas Sportatorium. I went up against The Blue Angel and kicked her butt. After that match I wanted more and decided to go and make wrestling my chosen career. I'm glad I did. I really enjoy the competition and the high I get from winning matches and, I especially like to win in my hometown of Dallas, Texas. The fans are really behind me there, rooting me on to victory and I just love it!

FF: Do you ever wrestle as part of a tag team?

MISS T: I have, with Jeff Jarrett in the USWA.

Jeff is a great guy who has taught me so much. He's also a terrific partner and I know I can count on him to come through for me in a tough situation. I would team again with him in a heartbeat.

FF: What promotions have you worked for?

MISS T: I have worked for the USWA, LPWA, WPW, World Class, Japan's Wrestling and Martial Arts Group and the WCW in Puerto Rico. I look forward to wrestling for the WWF or WCW in the near future. I just know I can give their ladies champion a real run for the money!

Miss Texas is aiming for the top.

"I love the grappling game!"

What a bod!

FF: What has been the biggest moment in your wrestling career to date?

MISS T: I was so happy when I won the USWA Women's championship from Dirty White Girl. I have also enjoyed facing off against Luna Vachon, Candi Divine, Debbie Combs and Sherri Martel. All these girls are tough but I learned something from each of them and I feel I am a better wrestler today because of my matches with these difficult opponents.

FF: What will be the single factor that will get you to the top?

MISS T: My desire and determination to win along with a positive attitude. I know I can be the best and I'm just itching for a chance to prove it. I feel that the sky is the limit and I hope to become the World's Woman Champion one day soon.

FF: What do you like to do in your spare time?

MISS T: I like to pump iron. When I look at photos of myself from several years ago I can see the good changes I've made in my body. I also enjoy shopping and hanging out with friends. I love listening to all kinds of music but I really like Janet Jackson.

FF: Let's get personal. Are you married or single?

MISS T: I'm currently single but I am looking for that special guy!

FF: Thanks so much for your time.

MISS T: Thank you and thanks to FIGHTING FEMALES to helping to promote women's wrestling. You guys are doing a great job. Keep up the good work! ♦

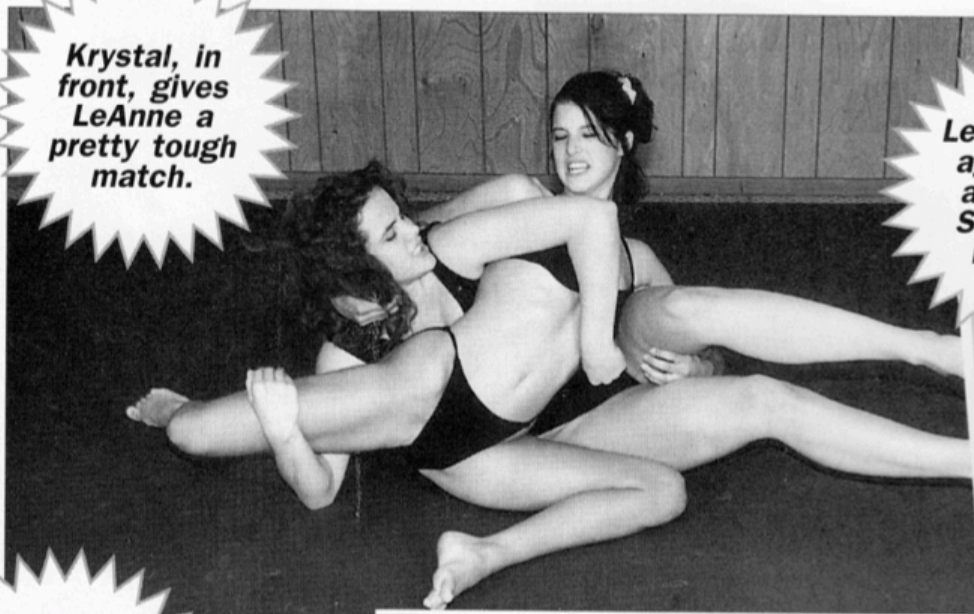

Miss Texas is a temptress.

SOUTHERN

Just

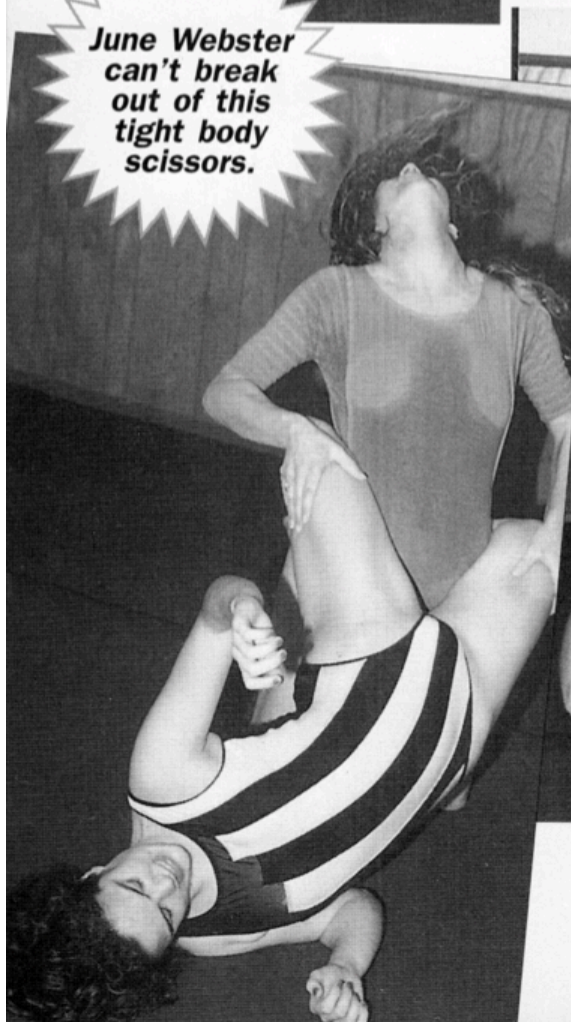

Krystal, in front, gives LeAnne a pretty tough match.

LeAnne gets aggressive and takes Shelley off her feet.

June Webster can't break out of this tight body scissors.

With a tight grip on Shelley's neck, LeAnne applies all the pressure she can to force Shelley to the mat.

A rugged and tough little Shelly has LeAnne in an awkward position.

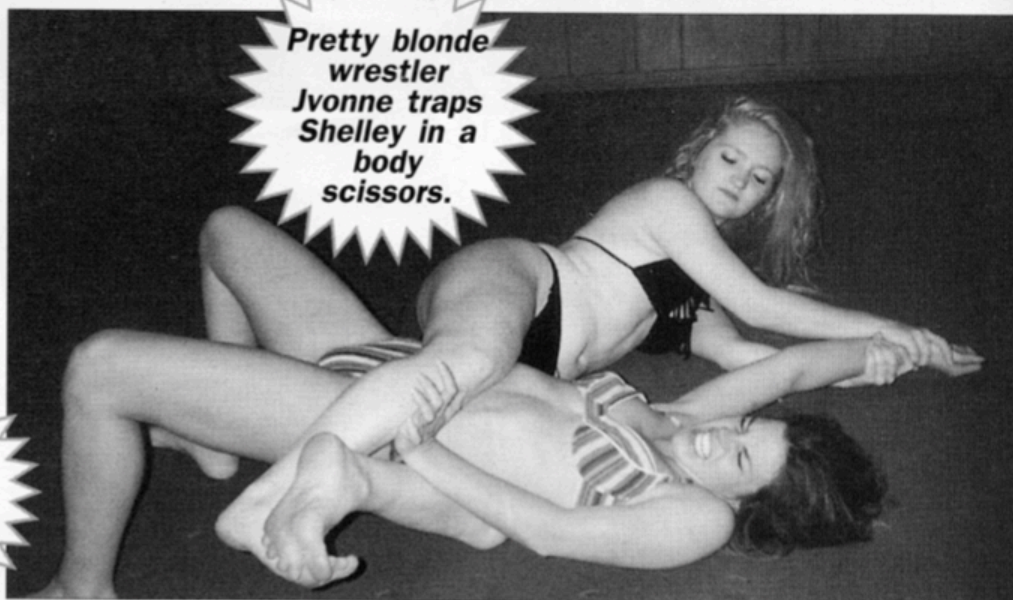

SOUTHERN BELLES

the girls next door

LeAnne has Kelly's arms all tied up.

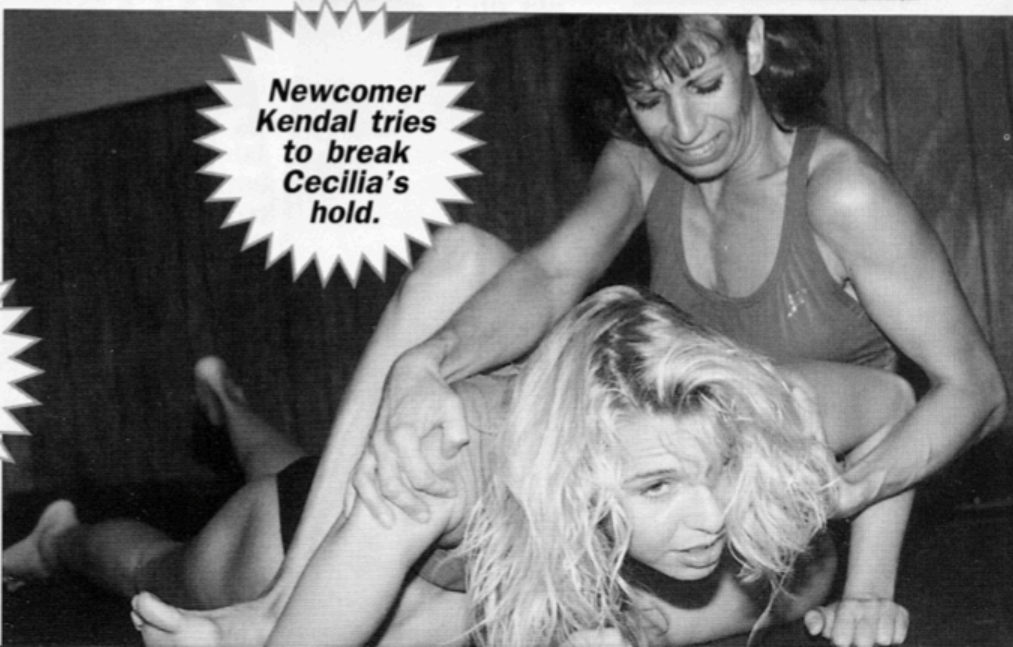

Pretty blonde wrestler Jvonne traps Shelley in a body scissors.

Wrestling is not for everyone, but if you are a fan, then you are in the right place, on the right page of FIGHTING FEMALES magazine. Southern Belles are the girls next door. You wouldn't expect these girls to be wrestlers. They don't look like wrestlers, and they certainly aren't pros, although some have the potential. They don't act like they are tough, but put them on a wrestling mat and you will see some very spirited competition.

Cecilia almost has to give up under the squeeze of Kendal's strong legs.

Jacque takes control with this school-boy press she's able to get on Ivonne.

Ivonne takes advantage of Shelley's weak arm, puts it in a hammerlock and makes Shelley give.

Ivonne goes for a pin on Jacque.

LeAnne rolls out of a pin even when Krystal has her leg hooked.

"Yes, we may have sweet Southern accents and genteel manners, but when we are challenged we can fight with the best of them," said June Webster who started the club last year. The club is dedicated to teaching people to wrestle for competition, fun and exercise. LeAnne, a 20 year old co-ed may charm you, but she once "decked" a romantic rival in a grocery store parking lot!

Members of the club practice when they can and in an effort to raise money, the club occasionally makes tapes to sell. The Southern Belles have teamed up with Special Events promotions to market their product and so far things are going well. The members hope that the fans will support them and encourage them not only now but in the future as well.

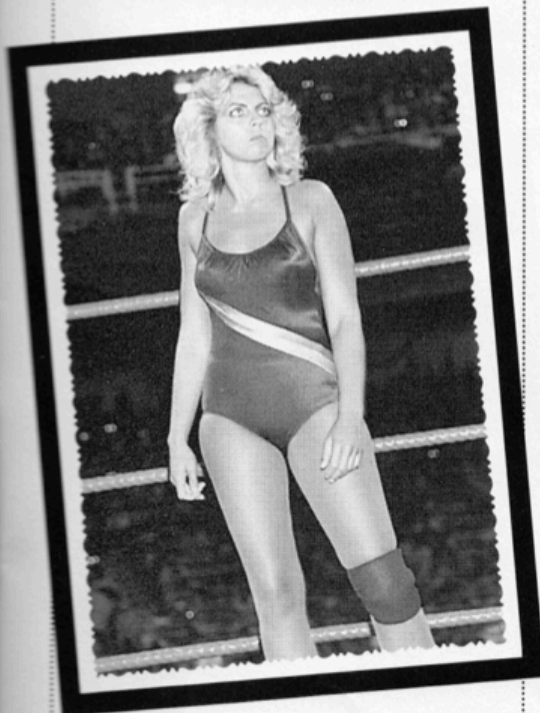

You won't find any nudity or bad language here. The Southern belles offer just good "down home" Southern style wrestling between some very athletically fit, competitive ladies. The doors are always open to those who want to try out for this fine amateur club. ♦

WOMEN OF THE AWA

THE LEGACY LIVES ON

by Dale Pierce

Candi Divine was a top draw for the AWA.

From the 1960's through the 1980's, the American Wrestling Alliance or AWA was operated by Verne Gagne. It was a large and prosperous promotion, which sadly, like many of its counterparts, collapsed when the larger WWF and NWA offices began their world wide invasions. In retrospect, fans of female grappling lament the fall of the AWA because it really was THE premiere organization for the ladies to strut their stuff.

The AWA introduced many new faces to the sport who later went on to achieve superstar status. Among the most prevalent was Madusa Miceli. Madusa made her debut in the AWA after an extensive modeling and stunt double career. While she was nothing to brag about ability-wise in her early matches, she had the looks and determination to go far. As she gained more experience she became one of the top draws in the game. Her early feuds with Sherri Martel, The Killer Tomato and Magnificent Mimi gave her valuable insight into her newly chosen career and ignited the tremendous desire to be the best inside the squared circle. Madusa was one the few women to land on her feet after the demise of the AWA. She was the WWF Ladies Champion and is easily the most recognizable face of 1990's. Madusa is truly an international star who has toured the world and taken on some of the toughest competi-

Sherri Martel came into the AWA with a great deal of experience under her belt and dethroned then champion, Candi Divine for the coveted Ladies title. Fans did not know what to make of this outright obnoxious Southerner who fought, well..., for lack of a better description, like a man. She was apt to brawl and cheat her way to victory and rarely wrestled a clean, scientific match. Martel liked to take her bouts out of the ring and into the stands, where she hurled her unlucky rivals into chairs, tables or whatever else was handy. After the AWA closed its doors, Sherri moved on to the WWF where she won the WWF Ladies title. She can thank Verne Gagne's AWA for helping her garner this coveted title.

Candi Divine, a former Grey Line office worker also got her start in the AWA. Trained in the Nashville area, she started out working for the regional IWU and IWA promotions down South and lucked out when the AWA called. Gagne wanted a grappler who could counter the attention that Wendi Richter was receiving in the WWF and Candi more than fit the bill. She became the promotion's top female draw and proudly defended her world championship title for quite a while.

After the AWA folded, Candi returned to Tennessee and worked for independent groups instead of going to the major were opposites in both appearance and style, but they caused AWA fans to gawk at both their looks and their capabilities in the ring. Neither held the women's title but they were tough competitors, giving the respective champs they faced some very real nightmares.

If you went way back in AWA history you would find Vivian Vachon, a woman who kept her opponents well under control by use of her vicious style. Sadly, Vivian died years later in a car crash following her retirement, but her legacy lives on. In her glory years, she was one of the most hated rule-breakers, despised equally, if not more, than her male counterparts. Equally sad to Vivian's demise is the fact that the AWA also died—a fine organization that helped bring many great female wrestlers gain national attention has been silenced forever but the memories live on. Perhaps a new promotion will rise from it's ashes and restore women's wrestling to it's rightful place in the spotlight. We can only hope and pray. ♦ promotions. A series of injuries, including a broken jaw didn't do much to further her career but Candi Divine remains active today and still has quite a bit of drawing power. She will always be remembered as the AWA champion, a title she defended with honor and dignity.

Others had their moments in the spotlight including The Killer Tomato, a good grappler with a ridiculous moniker. Equally impressive were Velvet McIntyre and Despina Montagas, two trainees of The Fabulous Moolah. These two gals

BACKYARD BRAWL!

by John Metz

LAURIE NELSON IS READY FOR JEANNE.

The cool Spring sun hung low in the South offering little heat. There was an 85 year old timbered shed, pump house and a garden by a long, dusty lane. Gnarled fruit trees, weeds and two powerful, long-legged sweating beauties circling over a...wrestling mat?! Yes, a rural county backyard fight between two women was about to take place.

My sister Judell arranged a fight for newcomer Laurie Nelson to square off against a veteran warrior, street and club fighter—none other than Jeanne Hunter.

Any fight with Jeanne would see me paying real money! I settled down with great anticipation not really knowing what was in store. It was a real experience from the beginning. Judell was stung by a bee and Laurie and Jeanne chased a cow out of the yard before the fight. When everything was finally settled Laurie was about to go the full distance with the tall, blonde "Lady Hunter", Jeanne. Laurie would try to force Jeanne into a mental and physical battle for the next 48 minutes. At stake was not only a victory but the WWW&B club title as well.

Laurie was uncertain. She had heard about Jeanne's skill and power. The bell rang and they locked together in battle. I could see goosebumps on both their bodies. Was it nerves or the cool air, I just didn't know. Jeanne immediately captured Laurie. Laurie fell to submission and cried out her surrender. Still, the match continued. I thought the pleasure of watching these two beautiful women was about to draw to a close. Boy, was I wrong! Laurie got herself together and she came back to hold off Jeanne's attacks. Next, she countered and turned Jeanne's holds, using them as weapons herself. It seemed that now Laurie was taunting the champion!

Jeanne Hunter was the hunted this cool afternoon. I was thinking, "upset". There was just no way to predict what would happen when girls fight with this kind of heart.

Laurie is taller, heavier and stronger. Each gal's legs are long and lethal! I wouldn't have wanted to be in there with either one of them! Blonde vs. brunette. Bronzed bodied Jeanne took on Laurie's milky white curves.

A chilling Spring sun gave me goosebumps too, or was it my own first hand experience as these ferocious, determined women spent their aggressions on the vinyl mat before me. Two powerful women drenched in their own sweat and determination! Jeanne defending her turf and Laurie wrestling to prove herself to WWW&B! This match could have gone either way. Jeanne has been on a winning streak, but she has never faced a woman this powerful. These two refused to lose.

Hair flies as the battle carries the mat on to the grass. Laurie's strength is an equalizer to Jeanne's experience. Their long, powerful legs tangled as they strain for the sound of submission.

I was there to witness the final sweet victory. When I walked that dusty drive to my car, I was still in awe of the whole experience. A rare glimpse of what it's like to be a true woman warrior! I would be back I knew, if I ever have the chance to see these two dynamos do battle again!

DWW SUM

The summer tournament started out with a beauty contest.

Joanna and Gabriella do battle.

Schatzy and Evaline are all tangled up.

The most ambitious tournament of fighting girls ever conceived took place in Hungary this past summer about 50km from Budapest.

Produced and presented by the DWW VIP club, this members-only event featured a variety of quality action to which even DWW has not far aspired.

In all, there 46 female vs. female fighters, four special surprise shows and 22 mixed matches (18 of them were private) held over three days. 34 girls aged between 19 and 28, from six countries, were watched by 41 guests from 15 countries, including New Zealand, South Africa and the USA.

The event was held in a secluded country house hotel, taken over entirely by DWW. Set in its own woodland, the hotel had been charmingly converted from a minor chateau. Behind the classical facade its facilities were impressive—three pools, gymnasium, sauna, tennis courts, various bars and a restaurant—even a five star football pitch. Although augmented by a Swiss style chalet, there were so many participants and guests that two other local hotels had to be employed, with an excellent ferrying service provided by three beautiful hostesses.

Always keen to impress with its style and organization, DWW began Friday evening's festivities with a complete beauty contest—with a difference.

During beauty contests on television, female fight fans will doubtless have asked themselves "What if" questions. Well, these queries were handsomely addressed by DWW on the very first evening if its annual weekend. From a number of eager applicants in both the Czech Republic and Hungary, sixteen girls had been selected in the months prior. Each was a head turning beauty in her own right. They were to compete as you would expect in a normal beauty contest, but the main prize included a weekend for two in London and to get it they would have to strip to bikini bottoms only and fight it out!

A raised runway led towards a large black wrestling mat placed on the lawn—one of four mats used during the event. While the guests enjoyed a welcoming glass of champagne and a candle-lit buffet, the girls walked the runway in their evening gowns. As they passed it soon became obvious that two successive girls, Eveline and Kriszta were wearing the same dress. These two began to trade verbal insults on the runway and it wasn't long before they had chased each other on to one of the mats and a furious cat-fight began. Amid shrieks of encouragement from the other contestants and more muted appreciation from the gentlemen, Kriszta and Eveline really went at it. Both dresses were soon severe casualties. Several onlookers were struck by flying buttons and underwear as the 21 year old beauties fought amidst others to a topless standstill.

Arm wrestling tournaments were enjoyed by all.

The hostesses interviewed the contenders in their own language, translating into English. Judges from the audience gave marks for beauty, expression, elegance, attitude, interview, dancing—the girls danced a few ballroom steps with a professional partner- and arm wrestling. There were two titles to be won: Miss Amazon and Miss Amazon Beauty. Miss Amazon would simply be the best fighter, Jana is in trouble thanks to Eva.

Silvia and Anita participated in a topless boxing match.

Racquel (USA) headlocks professional kickboxing world champion, Elena, who hails from Ukraine.

Real cats get involved in a catfight.

Eva has Ilona in a chin lock.

and Miss Amazon Beauty would be the girl who accumulated the most points from all the activities plus how much spirit she showed on the wrestling mat.

Still in evening dresses, the girls got down to it on the arm wrestling table and it was soon clear that encouragement was divided on national lines. For the topless wrestling tournament the beauty contestants were divided into four groups of four girls. Three matches would produce a winner of each group, these winners would be paired off for the semi-finals. Wrestling matches were over eight to twelve minutes of total fight time, or until there was a winner, with pins and submissions counting equally, pins requiring both shoulder blades and both wrists on the mat continuously for a count of five. Clever selection paired different nationalities and the "invasion" of home territory by fit, aggressive, beautiful Czechs soon raised the hackles of the Hungarians. Loud female screams drowned the more civilized vocal of the connoisseurs. The fights were very fast and furious, with some permissible hair pulling from time to time and some impressive holds. Most matches were quite even, being won by a margin of one or two falls.

DWW organized three competitions to run in tandem on Saturday; a wrestling tournament between heavier girls, another between more experienced wrestlers and some "Olympic" games, which were reserved for the prettiest competitors. The action took place beside the outdoor swimming pools. Running and swimming races between matched pairs from rival teams preceded a topless confrontation on the mat, fulfilling the wishes of all who have imagined a fight at the pool between topless beauties. And beauties is no exaggeration—several of these young ladies have graced the pages of international men's magazines.

The evening barbecue brought a topless boxing match between cute novices and the appearance of a circus trainer with two "big cats"—sensationally made up—who crawled into the ring for a "cat-fight".

On Sunday DWW held a repeat of its successful "Greek Tournament" which had premiered in their 1995 Summer Event. Four gorgeous young ladies, each wearing nothing at all except for a short, wind-blown loin-cloth, engaged in a very competitive four way wrestling tournament, with plenty of exciting hair pulling. The whole weekend was spiced with amusing diversions of mixed matches and well crafted cabaret items, as well as plenty of food and drink. The 1997 DWW VIP Club Summer Event is in preparation now—if you want to attend you must be a member, so you had better join up straight away. Demand in high and space is limited. ♦

TEXT AND PHOTOS
by Frank Higgins

They call me Frank the photo guy. I love my work and while the hours are sometimes long, the job is always exciting. I roll out of bed at 6 am and grab a shower and a hot cup of java. I hit the streets early always looking for a celeb to catch before I begin my stint on a local paper. After shooting a charity breakfast I did some paparazzi work outside of the new station. (I always bring a wide angle lens in case Brando shows up!) At 3 pm, I attended a press conference of another kind, for an upcoming prizefight. After listening to the promoter ramble on about himself and his fighter for ninety minutes, I decided I needed a reality check.. I went home and watched the soaps. Within 10 minutes I got the call. "We need a shoot done," said the voice on the other end of the phone. I realized who it was. "When is she coming over?", I asked. "Within the hour."

NICOLE KNIGHT

es On Countess Vladimira

"Oh yeah, and there's two of them!"

I've been behind the lens of a camera for almost ten years. In that time, I've done a few model shoots but I never expected what was about to happen!

I was told to be set up for 6 pm, and I'm ready. I'm also exhausted. I watch the clock zero in on six o'clock. It's now past 6 pm, well, 6:03 to be exact. I pour a cup of coffee to stay alert. A minute later, the knock on the door.

I open the door and my eyes set upon two of the most beautiful women I have ever met. After seeing them, I didn't need the coffee! There's also two big guys with them. I'm assuming bodyguards, or maybe boyfriends. Then there's Claude, the shoot coordinator. He's a bit of an artsy type. Claude says these two are supposed to have two individual shoots. Both are cover girl candidates. Well, that's simple enough so I tell Claude that one of the girls must leave. It's an unwritten rule. You never shoot one of them while the other watches. It's just not professional. He takes a step back and tells me it's not possible, neither one will leave. He then hands me their bios.

Ms. Nicole Knight, 34-22-34, from Princeton, New Jersey. Has modeled since the age of eight. Has done both runway and print. Currently holds the title of Miss National Wrestling Alliance.

too numerous to mention. (Where, in Transylvania?!)

I chuckled at the absurdity as I greeted the ladies. I said, "Alright, let's get going." On command, both girls undid their long coats and dropped them to the floor. WOW! Let me try to describe this. A small, very small white bathing suit covered Nicole's tan, tight, petite body. Her soft hair cascaded down her shoulders like a waterfall. As we shot a glance at each other, her smile illuminated the entire room.

Vladimira was a different story. There she was, a lovely and seemingly sweet young lady. I extended my hand and I think she growled at me! Her hand was cold and her eyes had their eerie gleam, but let me tell you, she was knock out gorgeous.

Pale white complexion, with charcoal black hair. Her body was absolutely perfect. This was going to be a fun job.

Claude scored a deal that Nicole would be first. Vladimira turned towards the waiting room. She definitely wasn't happy. She had a real snarl on her face. Well, that was Claude's business, not mine, so I started the shoot. I positioned Nicole in some alluring shots when of a sudden I heard a commotion in the next room. Claude runs to the ruckus. It was Vladimira, who has overturned all the tables and chairs in the room. "I demand to be first," she said with a ghoulish grimace. "She's a nobody! I'm more beautiful than her!"

Claude tried to persuade Vladimira to stick to her end of the deal but it was useless. She continued her barrage of words for almost ten minutes, then the door flew open and in she ran. Nicole, who was basking the warm glow of the photo lights overhead didn't notice the chaos.

Vladimira approached Nicole and didn't say a word. Instead she exhaled, hard. Nicole's eyes opened at that point and she stood up but before she could react, the Countess was a going for her throat. She was screaming at Nicole and pulling her hair! That's when I grabbed my camera, snapping the following photos....♦

ANNA MARIE ONESTI

by J.P. Erickson

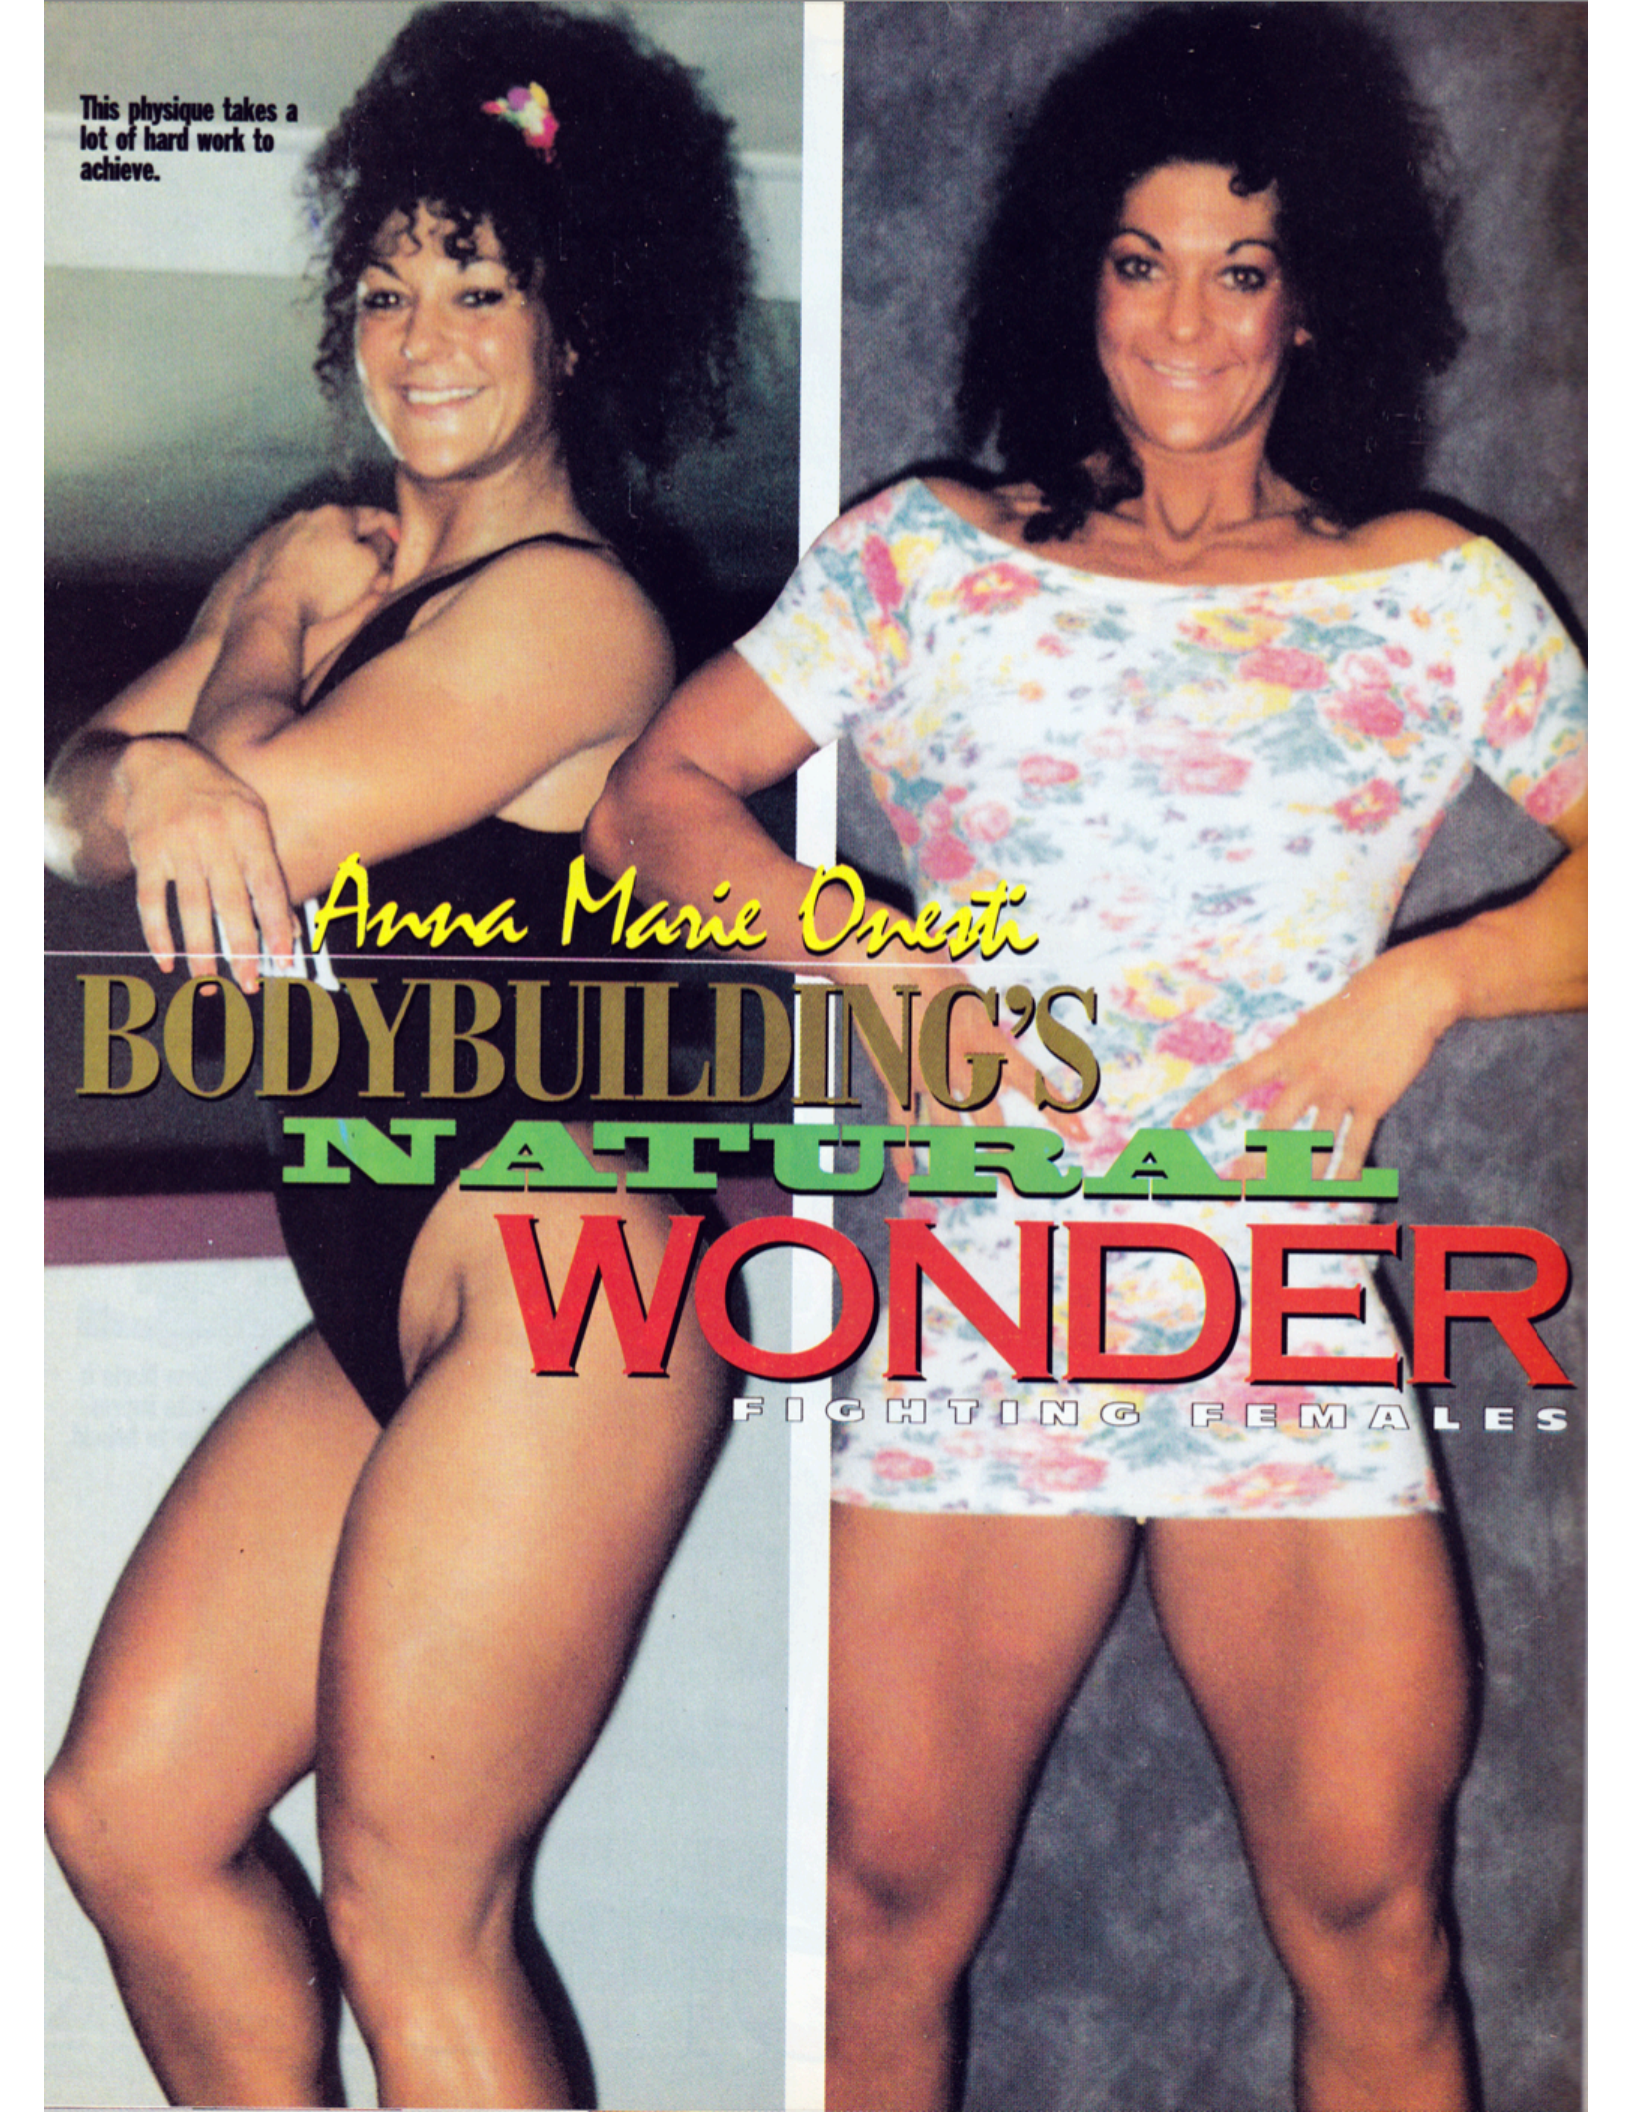

When you think of the Pacific Northwest, images of towering trees that scrape the sky, clean crisp air and the natural, rugged beauty of the countryside come to mind. This description also parallels bodybuilder Anna Marie Onesti.

FIGHTING FEMALES

Check out her 28 inch thigh!

Here's one of the top bods in the biz!

Onesti, who stands an imposing six feet tall in her bare feet, almost scrapes the sky. She is one of the largest women competing in bodybuilding and 195 pounds." If Anna Marie is able to achieve her goal, this will earn her the distinction of being the largest natural bodybuilder competing in the women's division.

this rugged beauty developed her muscle the natural way—through hard work. On the subject of competing as a natural bodybuilder, she states: "I plan to stay that way."

To her credit so far she is the winner of the heavyweight class at the 1995 Pacific Coast, winner of the Vancouver Natural and the third place finisher in the Emerald Cup. She has entered two bodybuilding competitions over the past few months and hopes to enter a couple more.

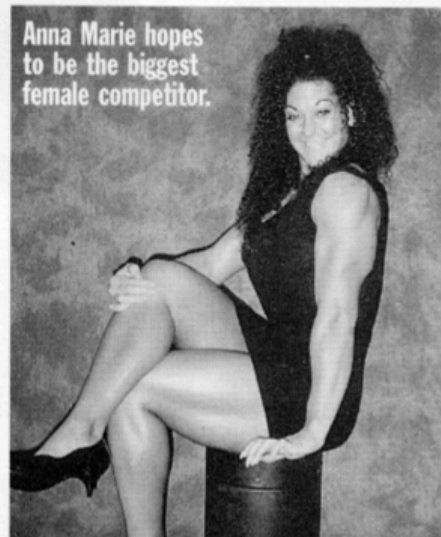

One look at Onesti's muscular frame and you know you won't be hearing, "Where's the beef?" She is living proof that a natural competitor can pack on muscle mass. She currently weighs 180 pounds in contest shape and up to 205 pounds in her off-season.

Her goal is to gain even more muscle and size for bodybuilding competition. "I hope someday to step on the contest stage at

At her off-season weight of 205 pounds she boasts the following measurements: biceps—17½ inches, thighs—28 inches, and calves—17 inches.

To fuel her body Anna Marie eats clean foods year round and states that "I am so sure that my body is so used to this that it would surely reject anything that isn't good for me. I don't even crave junk food anymore."

Anna Marie hopes to be the biggest female competitor.

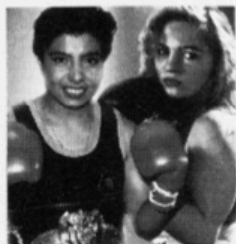

In the gym this natural amazon has posted some impressive lifts including leg presses with over 1,100 pounds for 13 reps (she probably could have hit 1,400 pounds but she ran out of weights!); bench pressing 250 pounds for 8 reps; free weights shrugs with 600 pounds for 10 reps; and dumbbell rows with 120 pounds on each side. Commenting on her impressive lifts she exclaims, "I love being big and strong."

In the future bodybuilding fans can be sure they will hear more about his towering muscle-maiden. Her impressive size and muscularity garner attention wherever she goes and helps make her a crowd favorite. ♦

FIGHTING FEMALES—OPAL INC., P.O. BOX 386—NEW YORK, NY 10013 (ATTN: EDITOR)

Dear CeeDee,

My boyfriend and I love your magazine! All American magazines devoted to women's wrestling and boxing seem to die out after only a few issues. But none of those magazines were ever half as good as FIGHTING FEMALES. We're so happy you're still going strong after eight issues! My boyfriend just sent in for our subscription.

In the Fall issue, RD. of Durham, N.C. was just a little hard on Tigra. When she claimed that women are better submission wrestlers I'm sure she meant pound for pound. You wouldn't hold it against a champion welterweight boxer if he got knocked out by Mike Tyson so why expect Tigra to be able to beat Lex Luger? Come on! I'm sure that Tigra could wring a submission out of 99.9% of the men her size in the world.

It was nice to see a letter from a woman (Female Power, Sunnyvale, Ca). She says she's an athlete and loves competing with men, but she doesn't say if she wrestled with men. If she has I hope she writes back and tells us about it.

My boyfriend loves to watch me wrestle other girls, but at 6'0" tall and 185 hard, well proportioned pounds it's not easy to find willing opponents. I've wrestled many of my friends, but they are "normal" sized girls and I didn't have any trouble with them. I've also wrestled my boyfriend (he's only 5'10"—185 pounds) but I had very little trouble against him as well. He's no wimp but I outsized him quite a bit and eventually he had to face the facts and surrender to me. I've also wrestled a few smaller girls whom I didn't know. They were nice enough, but my boyfriend likes to watch one-sided mismatches so I didn't go as easy on them as I did with my friends.

Dear CeeDee,

The summer issue of FIGHTING FEMALES was the best issue to date. The articles on amateur clubs like Joan Wise, DWW, Hoffman Agency, Double Trouble and so on were the best. I have already ordered 3 videos from these outlets and I plan to order more. PLEASE, keep up the articles and photos on these beautiful girls.

Could you also please show more of those very sexy pin photos like the one where Jacki sits on Lee's chest in the Joan Wise articles and again the same type of pin in the Hoffman Agency article. After all, the object of wrestling is to pin your opponent's shoulders flat and the best way to do it is the with the school girl pin.

I look forward to the next issue and I hope as you read this that you will continue to feature more of those beautiful bikini girl wrestlers.

Dear Editor,

Thank you for a fantastic magazine....which is a tribute to modern women to both their physical and mental prowess.

As many of us middle aged males grow flabby and fat, young women are training in kickboxing, karate and wrestling as just part of their daily physical exercise and we had better heed the new message. Women are strong as well as sexy.

Recently I observed a beautiful eighteen year old totally devastate a fat but strong male in his fifties. It started as a simple demo, but after getting annoyed with this volunteer, the tanned, barefoot beauty in the black bikini placed the poor guy in various armbars and then quickly brought him down with several quick kicks and a flip. The big guy ended up sprawled on the sandy beach face down.

The blonde then sat atop him and placed a choke hold on him forcing the red faced man to submit. The teenaged tormentor then grew arrogant and stood over the defeated guy posing prettily for pictures. When the fellow started to get up, she kicked him to finish the match off. She then placed her left foot on his neck and held up her arms in victory.

Watching the humiliated man lie helpless underneath the shapely foot of the young athletic woman made me realize that many of us older and out of shape males will have to respect the potential of female muscle and athletic skill.

Keep up the great work.

The Joan Wise Club offers a great variety of submission pins.

Dear Fighting Females,

I enjoy your magazine very much. I always like seeing strong, attractive women make any man submit.

I would like to see more head scissors and face sitting submissions. The girls in your magazine have such strong bodies and their legs are not to be believed!

So, could you please have more head scissor holds and face sitting submissions. I really enjoy powerful women.

Dear CeeDee,

I have been with your magazine since the first issue. I am the manager of Festelle Video Australia and as a promoter of female wrestling and boxing I can say that your magazine FIGHTING FEMALES is the best I have seen in my travels around the world. Your magazine is varied and features so much great in-depth reporting and coverage of the fine sport of female wrestling.

FIGHTING FEMALES is known all around the world from Australia to Britain where I heard your magazine mentioned during a tournament I attended.

Keep up the good work, CeeDee!

—Mark Slater

Dear CeeDee,

This letter is to express to you the pleasure in enjoying, reading and now subscribing to your magazine. I never would have conceived that a magazine about female warriors would even be on the open market and have such a great readership. The magazine itself is excellent. It has allowed me to discover all the different styles of female wrestling as well as different clubs and organizations that I never even knew existed.

I personally enjoy groups like Danube who provide 100% real action. Keep the real action coming and feature more articles about Danube, Women Warriors, Festelle, Kenstar etc....

Many thanks for such a fine product.

JAMIE WEST

by Don Laible

CONSIDERS RETIREMENT

The lady is getting mighty restless and everybody who knows her is quite sure just what it will take to pacify the inimitable Jamie West. There's a furor burning in her belly to gain more recognition and be treated fairly by the promoters. "Jamie has always played by the rules. She rarely, if ever, haggled with promoters over her winnings and has always been a good sport. It's a mystery why her career is not going any further, but I can certainly understand why her ring work has become far more aggressive" fellow wrestler Fantasia mused.

Perhaps the problem lies with the fact that promoters consider her to be a regional talent. She has ruled the New England territory for more than a dozen years but has not really been given the chance to show what she is capable of outside of this area. If only the WWF or WCW would allow her to step between their ring ropes, it wouldn't be long before fans and promoters alike would be screaming to see more of her fine work.

Yeah, it sound simple, we know. Brown knows all too well, too. Maybe too simple for the big leagues. There continues to be talk filtering out of West's martial arts academy in Malden, Massachusetts that she may, in fact, be seriously considering retirement when this year draws to a close. Although those who have known West the longest don't buy into this gibberish, they are stepping up to offer support and keep her morale high. The legion of fans who have watched Jamie blossom from a clumsy rookie to a bonafide main eventer are also scratching their heads in bewilderment as to why she hasn't been asked to relocate to either Atlanta, Georgia or Stamford, Connecticut, home bases of WCW and WWF respectively.

"Come on, what up with those guys over at the big leagues anyway? Jamie is in great shape and is at the peak of her potential. There's no one, and I mean no one, who can spring off the ring ropes as fast and as determined as Jamie. She really deserves a break," the legendary Debbie Combs fumed.

West is convinced that women's wrestling is on a downward slide and she hopes to revive it with good, old fashioned professionalism. "WCW needs to show more wrestling and less theatrics," she stated. Their ladies matches really depress me. The same match has taken place dozens of times over the last few years and all those who witnessed the match where the loser was to have her motorcycle smashed had to be bored out of their skulls. Can anyone tell me what I'm missing here?"

Jamie just wants a chance to prove to WCW officials that the organization need not stoop to cheap theatrics to capture and retain an audience. Jamie admits that she never had any thoughts of taking her brand of hand to hand mat action on the road, but feels that something must be done now to garner more respect for the female athletes. Time has a way of changing one's priorities and Jamie is now ready to show WCW just what she is capable of. She is willing to cut the WWF some slack -for now.

"Mr. McMahon has enough on his mind these days since he lost so much of his top talent to WCW. He may not be thinking about rebuilding a women's division just yet but he had better not take too much time to come to his senses."

For now, Jamie is content to wrestling community and she is just waiting for the chance to strut her stuff. Her career is on hold for now but West still hopes and dreams for that big break to come her way.

Timing is everything in all walks of life but it's doubtful that West will wait too long for her chance. She vows not to resort to back alley tactics in order to prove her worthiness. She has no relatives or former college roommates to help her achieve her goal but Jamie West still holds hope that a videotape of her matches will find its way into the right hands. Sad to say, Jamie may never get the shot she's clearly earned. Bad breaks or no breaks do happen to nice people too, but lets keep our fingers crossed anyway. ♦

A LOOK AT THE EARLY YEARS

Women's wrestling enjoyed some of its finest hours during the beginning of the century. The ladies were well trained and well conditioned athletes who fought to the best of their abilities. The matches were exciting and fans quickly clamored to arenas to root for their favorite heroines of the ring. These athletic, competitive women were strong willed enough not to be bound by traditional ideas of how ladies were supposed to act and as a result a whole new sport opened up to them, much to the delights of millions across the world.

Ella Waldek takes on Elvira Snodgras.

Betsy Ross has Judy Glover right where she wants her.

Rose Roman has the upper hand.

Ivy Russell was an early example of such greatness. Here was an athlete who possessed agility, speed and power. She was adept at almost every sport she tried. She played a fair round of golf, a fine set of tennis and was quite acceptable as a basketball player. But she was up against other women who were less competitive, less willing to explore the netherworld of physical contact and combat. When she found wrestling, she thought she had found heaven. Here she could discover the measure of her strength and will, exhaust herself in the effort to dominate her opponent, and be equally sure that she was, herself, facing domination if she lost. If Ivy Russell did not find her wealth in wrestling other women, she found her soul.

The 1950's and 1960's brought about a big resurgence in the ladies grappling games. Mildred Burke, Moolah, June Byers, Penny Banner and Vivian Vachon were just a few of the greats who left their mark on the sport. Take a trip down memory lane with us and see how many of these great matches you remember:

Mae Weston lifts Patsy Mills.

Judy Grable is about to send Brenda Scott flying.

Marge Ramsey and Rita Cortez do battle.

Ella Waldek lifts Peggy Allen.

Cora Combs hits blonde Karen Kellogg.

Treena spread her legs to hold herself stable. She was on top, but Patsy's legs were around her middle. It wasn't a scissors, but it could become one. A flash bulb popped. Treena could just imagine the Kodak moment captured.

"Let me up," said Patsy. "come on."

"I like you down, on the mat where you belong. When this is over, I'm going to make you kiss the mat."

"In your dreams." Patsy jerked violently and pushed Treena away. "I'm too fast for you."

Both wrestlers were on their feet and circling.

"Hey guys. Want to see her kiss the mat?" asked Treena.

The chorus of approval was deafening.

Patsy pointed. "She's kissing the mat. Trust me."

Both wrestlers closed. Treena went for Patsy's legs. True to Treena's plan they were back on the mat.

"Damn you." Patsy pounded the floor.

Treena tried to put her legs around Patsy's waist. Her bottom leg was blocked. A test of strength ensued. More flashbulbs popped. Treena knew why. The sight of two girls in skimpy bikinis, groveling for an advantage on the floor was a huge turn-on for guys. She thought about the roomful of men. All of them were getting into her body. The high went two ways. She loved this attention.

Patsy squirmed and pulled a reverse. Treena felt both legs around her body. "I'm starting to like the mat." Patsy tightened her grip. She watched the air explode from Treena's gut. "Why don't you like it?" For extra measure, Patsy tugged Treena's hair.

Treena bridged. Patsy rolled backward and lifted Treena completely off the mat. Another flashbulb popped.

"Nice try, dearie," said Patsy. "I hope this guy has more film. I want him to get you with your

"Hey, look at this. Little Treena is going to dreamland."

Patsy released her body scissors and maneuvered Treena's body. "Get that camera ready." Patsy shoved Treena's face to the mat. The flashbulb popped.

"Alright." Patsy jumped to her feet and danced on her tip toes, soaking up the adulation of the all-male crowd. "Give me that winner's purse."

In the corner, Treena was beaten but still conscious. "I want a rematch." She tried to clear the cobwebs from her head. "I don't believe she made me do that."

Patsy waltzed across the mat and looked down on her beaten foe, "Guess what you're getting from me next Sweetest Day. A picture of that finale, poster sized." Patsy squatted to Treena's level and pinched one cheek. "You looked so cute." ♦

When asked if she was doing anything different, Heather said, "Yes, what do you think?" and quickly flexed an impressive bicep and stretched and pointed her leg to show a diamond shaped calf.

Ms. Fine is tough on the mat but extremely gracious to all who approach her. "My fans are like family. I think of them before I enter the ring and they're all the encouragement I need to do that last rep in the gym," Heather stated.

Heather does posing as well. She has worked hard to achieve her great body and

Apartment Antics

Gail gains the advantage when she pulls Phyllis down on the carpet.

Gail and Phyllis battle it over a job promotion.

After an exhausting struggle, Phyllis gets on top of Gail and wouldn't let her up until she agreed not to try for the job.

You never know what goes on behind closed doors. Mild mannered women by day can turn into shrieking hellcats at night. Sometimes differences can't be settled by words—fists have to do the talking. At a quiet apartment complex in Los Angeles, California, these exclusive photos were obtained by FIGHTING FEMALES. If you think that quiet, mousy neighbor of yours in Apartment 2B just goes home to a quiet night of TV, think again! ♦

The Ray Martin Video Company is pleased to introduce to you our new series of female bodybuilding videos, featuring top-name women bodybuilders and fitness women posing and play acting in a variety of muscle skits and activities. And, for this ad only, we were chosen as exclusive distributors for two other fine video producers - Video Views for their wrestling videos, and Women's Physique World for their bodybuilding posing/workout tapes. RAY MARTIN (RM) VIDEOS: Videos run 1-2 hours, and the 6 models pictured here all pose in a variety of outfits (bikinis, leotards, dresses), Tina's video (RM-21) contains lifting another woman. Doughdee's video (RM-19) contains a martial arts workout. For real lifting fans, Karla Nelson (RM-16) features much lifting, for fitness fans, April Johnson and Holy Hart pose together (RM-09). VIDEO VIEWS (VV) VIDEOS: The only company we know which produces real Greco-Roman amateur free-style and real pro women wrestling, both girl-girl and mixed. Videos run 1-2 hours. The tournament (VV-32), never released anywhere else, features 19 different women competing for a national title. Three women from this contest are featured in VV-35, with interviews, sparring sessions and real matches against each other and male foes. The same format used for Tina Moretti and Spice Williams (VV-34) but featuring pro-style action. Just recently released, VV-40 features mother-daughter boxing- both are trained national champs and this is 100% real action. Also available: amateur arm wrestlers (VV-39) and pro mixed wrestling action (VV-36). WOMEN'S PHYSIQUE WORLD (WPW) VIDEOS: Though none of the 7 women offered here are pictured, most of you reading the muscle magazines are aware of these very accomplished pro bodybuilders. Videos run 2-2 3/4 hours and feature lots of posing in many outfits (and in top contest shape), gym workouts and interviews. The 1994-1995 set of WOMEN'S PHYSIQUE WORLD magazines contain 12 issues. Full catalogues from all three companies sent with your order.
